DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

1. Claim 30 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Farash in view of Kamiyama et al.
2. The reference discloses a timepiece including dial face defined by the dial faces 2,4 with circumferential boundary as shown in Fig. 4 and geometric center , hours indicia as shown, first time movement 2 including hours and minutes hands (Par. 19), second time movement 4 including hours /minutes hands (Par. 19), the two movements spaced in relation to the each other and from the geometric center, the two movements being settable and running independently of one another (see Par. 26).
3. With respect to the oval shape of the dial, Farash suggests several shapes of the timepiece in Figs. 1-4. The embodiment of Fig. 4 is described as "with a rectangular watch face in which the longer pair of opposing sides appears to have been bent outward.This extra space allows the two clocks to be positioned adjacent to one another, separated by a vertical line that is part of the watch face rim, and which runs between them.” (Par. 24). Thus, to accommodate the two display faces, the face of the timepiece is stretched on both sides, as in applicants invention. Although this does not define a geometric “oval” shape, one of ordinary skill in the art would be sufficiently taught in the reference to design the dial face in any of several ornamentally desirable shapes to suit individual preferences.

4. The Farash reference further teaches the use of separate time setting buttons for each of two timepiece movements thereof (see par. 26), with one stem arrangement for each movement, as shown in Fig. 4. Kamiyama et al suggest several setting buttons 8-11 for separately controlling various timepiece functions in a watch with plural movements. It would therefore be obvious for one skilled in the art to provide each display combination of hours/minutes in the Farash device with a separate arrangement of three setting stems, as suggested in Kamiyama et al., as an obvious means for separately controlling the functions of each time display.

Double Patenting

5. Claims 1,2,5-7, and 9-20 are provisionally rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 as claiming the same invention as that of claims 1,2,5-7 and 9-20 of copending Application No. 10/783,300 This is a provisional double patenting rejection since the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

6. Claim 21 provisionally rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claim 5 of copending Application No. 10/783,300. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because a timepiece frame and a bezel are conventional components of a timepiece, Official notice being taken of this conventional feature. With respect to the bezel being connectable and disconnectable from the timepiece, this feature is likewise taken official notice of as being known, for example during assembly or disassembly of the timepiece.

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

7. Applicant's comments have been given careful consideration, but have not been found persuasive for the reasons set forth above.

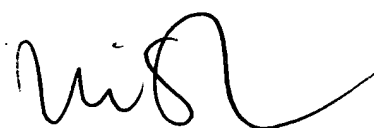

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
